

SPECIAL ARCHIVES, FILM, & MEDIA PRESERVATION SOLUTIONS

HISTORIC TREASURES, MODERN MEASURES.

The digital preservation of special archives, film, & media is not only limited to those in library & archival science. Many industries like music, law enforcement, government, and museums have tons of material that doesn't come in your standard letter-sized paper.

Special archives materials like parchment paper, microfilm & microfiche, scrapbooks, and even audio & video files must be carefully managed and securely stored in order to avoid any unwanted modification to the original file. This is necessary for these documents to be ready for distribution in digital formats. Legacy formats require unique material handling to preserve original pieces safely and without damage for when these are ready to be accessed and shared by the mass public.

For unique formats like film & media, we use a straight transfer technology that allows us to digitize film frame-by-frame and, in some cases, even recover damaged original footage. A mix of powerful scanning technology and our expert special archive preservation pros will improve the quality and consistency of any old format into its new digital housing.

MONEY TO MODERNIZE & PRESERVE.

Many organizations are pushing for the digital preservation of special archive collections & outdated legacy formats, so much so that grants are being given to companies in nearly every industry. For example, since 2015, the Council of Library and Information Resources has awarded roughly $4 million per year to institutions holding collections of high value for research, teaching, and learning.

What's most important is having a team of actionable and dependable people to do this task, a team that can be relied on for digitization services like:

- Retention & Destruction Schedules
- Compliance Standards Per Industry
- Document Management
- Information Governance
- Records Relocation Services
- Business Process Outsourcing & more
